Open Ph.D. Position in Cognitive Production Systems

Type: Job offer | Location: Austria | Company/Institute: Graz University of Technology | Updated: 24/01/2018

We are at the dawn of a transition from mass-produced one-size-fits-all products to cognitive products that are tailor-made to the desire of each customer, and constantly adapt to changing demands of users and environments. A new generation of cognitive factories is required to produce cognitive products (of which no two are identical) at industrial scale with high quality and low cost. This can only be achieved by means of tight interaction of cognitive products among each other, with humans, environments, machines, tools, robots, etc. These interactions result into an unprecedented level of complexity which gives rise to exciting research questions such as: - How can we accurately...

I visited their office in the first week of my stay in Graz, I was warmly welcomed and I got answer to all of the many questions I had at that time regarding public transport, working permit, mobile operators, banks etc. I am very thankful for their help, because the Welcome Center is the reason why I got used to Austria so fast and now I feel Graz is definitely my new home.
